- Le Clarence de Haut-Brion 2015 is the 2nd wine of Haut-Brion. It is the highest ever scoring Clarence (93+).
- We are recommending it because it is undervalued versus the other 2015 First Growth 'second wines', and because we believe it will appreciate with the 100-point Haut-Brion 2015 over time.
- Le Clarence 2015 is 50% cheaper than the other First Growth second wines from 2015, despite having a higher score and a much better scored first wine.
- Drinking window for Le Clarence de Haut-Brion 2015 is to 2039, making it a long-dated investment wine.
- We believe it can appreciate for 20 years at almost 6%, to reach SG$3,225 at the end of its drinking window in 2039.

Le Clarence de Haut-Brion is the 'second wine' of Bordeaux First Growth estate Château Haut-Brion. The grapes for this wine come from the same vineyard, harvested at the same time, and the wine is vinified in the same way as the 100-point Haut-Brion 2015.

Why are you recommending Le Clarence de Haut-Brion 2015?

1. 2015 was an investment grade vintage in Bordeaux. It should provide excellent long-term investment potential.
2. Le Clarence de Haut-Brion 2015 is the highest scoring 2015 First Growth second wine – beating Carruades de Lafite, Pavillon Rouge and Petit Mouton with 93+ points from Robert Parker.
3. Le Clarence de Haut-Brion 2015 has the highest scoring first wine of all the released second wines¹ from 2015 (100 points for Haut-Brion 2015 from Robert Parker).
4. Le Clarence de Haut-Brion is by far the cheapest of the First Growth second wines from this vintage.
5. In its own right, Le Clarence de Haut-Brion is a 20-year investment wine, with a drinking window to 2039 (Wine Advocate).
6. We expect it to trade around 16% of the value of the Haut-Brion 2015 first wine in 20 years' time, which implies a value of SG$3,225 (6x75cl), or a compound annual growth rate from today of 5.9%.

¹ Chateau Latour has not yet released its 2015 first wine.

What will make Le Clarence de Haut-Brion 2015 go up in price?

Two things:

1. Collectors Spotting the Relative Undervaluation of Le Clarence 2015 - It makes no sense for Le Clarence de Haut-Brion 2015 to have the best score, the highest scored first wine and by far the lowest price of the First Growth 'second wines' from 2015:

	2015 First Growth Second Wine Analysis
	Carruades de Lafite	Pavillon Rouge	Petit Mouton	Clarence de Haut-Brion
Second Wine Score	91	92	93	93+
Price	SGD 2,470	SGD 1,665	SGD 1,943	SGD 1,030
First Wine Score	96+	99	98	100

The average price of Carruades, Pavillon Rouge and Petit Mouton 2015 is SG$2,026. Le Clarence de Haut-Brion trades at a 50% discount to this average price, despite it being a better wine with a 'legend in the making' 100-point first wine. This looks like a market anomaly.

2. Le Clarence 2015 will appreciate with Haut-Brion 2015. We have written elsewhere that we expect Haut-Brion 2015 to appreciate at inflation + 5.0% for at least 30 years (7.2% in total based on current inflation expectations). Even if we assume that Le Clarence falls from 20.5% of the price of Haut-Brion to 15.7% (the ratios of the 1989 wines' relative prices today), that still implies a price of SG$3,225 for Le Clarence 2015 in 20 years, or a CAGR of 5.9%.

Current Market Prices for Le Clarence and Haut-Brion

Vintage	Haut-Brion	Haut-Brion Score	Le Clarence de Haut-Brion	Clarence Score	Le Clarence % of Haut-Brion
2015	SGD 5,025	100	SGD 1,030	93+	20.5%
2010	SGD 6,198	100	SGD 1,147	93	18.5%
1989	SGD 17,113	100	SGD 2,683	90	15.7%

We therefore recommend Le Clarence de Haut-Brion 2015 as both a short-term play on its relative undervaluation versus the other First Growth second wines, and as a cheap way in to a 100-point First Growth wine.

But we also believe that this wine will produce steady long-term returns on the back of the anticipated appreciation in the First Wine.
